SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

1. Increasing vigilance of the Peruvian police reportedly has forced APRA underground leaders virtually to suspend activities for the present. The underground fears that the recent arrests of Apristas, including well-known members of the party's Comité Nacional de Acción, have provided the police with additional information which has endangered the safety of underground leaders still in hiding. Therefore these individuals have gone into deep hiding. Although there have been no new arrests recently, the party leaders still at large are very uneasy.
2. The party is also suffering an acute financial crisis, which together with the inactivity of the underground leaders, is responsible for the fact that APRA's clandestine propaganda has not circulated in the Lima area for some weeks.
3. Manuel Perez Leon, an underground leader who was arrested some months ago and then officially released in mid-August, has departed for Chile from where he will travel to Argentina. He and his wife plan to meet in Miami about 15 September and will make their residence in the United States. Perez' release reportedly was largely due to the intervention of his father-in-law, Colonel Leopoldo Jarroin, who is a close friend of President Odria. Perez Leon confided [redacted] before he left Peru that while he was in prison, he was accorded much better treatment than most Apristas because of Colonel Jarroin's influence.
